Please vote NO on HB 5263 - Rabbits for food consumption.

Rabbits are the third most common household pet after dogs and cats.

Whole Foods and other specialty stores stopped selling rabbit meat after concluding there was no market for sales.

The multi-billion-dollar cosmetic industry has been moving away from using rabbits and other animals in their testing programs due to consumer pressure.

While the rest of the country has recognized and elevated rabbits as pets, CT is taking a step backward in proposing this initiative.
